

Eligibility

Entrants may submit a piece on any aspect of the parking industry. This can be a technical piece, an innovative piece, an article about an achievement – by an individual, a team of employees or a company – a humorous article, or indeed any article relating to an aspect of the parking industry.

Any author may qualify including previous winners (unless they have indicated they wish to be excluded).

Rules

The article must not:

- Promote a particular product or service.
- Simply be a progress/standard report written in the course of the author's work.
- Be written by one of the judges.
- Be written by a professional journalist.
- Be written by a PR professional on behalf of themselves or others.
- Be written by BPA staff.
- Be written outside the qualifying period

Additionally, articles

- Must be substantially the author's own work (joint authorship is allowed).
- May be commissioned articles for which an 'Honarium' or similar payment is paid by the BPA.
- May be a case study.

Judges

The judges' decision is final. Where the judges are unable to agree on a winner, their comments and resulting recommendations will be put to the Chair (or another member) of the Public Affairs and Communications Board who will make the final decision.

The judges will consist of the editor of Parking News, the Chair or another member of the Public Affairs and Communications Board, the Vice President, a council member and a BPA Executive Director.
